

Hall of Fame Nominee

Jim Campbell, Mcap

Jim Campbell entered the appliance service industry several years ago and after spending some time with Maytag and then Sears he ventured out on his own as an independent servicer. After this leap of faith he became interested in the industry as a whole and with a determination to help and give of himself wherever he could to improve the industry. He has been a member of PSA since 2009. During this time, Jim has dedicated a lot of his time to improving the technical abilities of other technicians by hosting training classes and his direct one on one support on the PSANet email system.

Jim is a PSA authorized technology instructor and continues to teach classes for the BAT program across the nation and hosting a variety of technical classes at the National Appliance Service Convention (NASC), which is PSA's annual convention. Jim also has worked with the certification committee in its efforts to keep the Certified Appliance Professional (CAP) exams up to date and relevant to today's ever changing technology.

Jim has been the recipient of several awards from PSA including the President's Award and several Director's Awards for his work and dedication to helping other technicians improve their knowledge and diagnostic skills to better serve our customers and simultaneously improve themselves while improving our service industry.

Jim's many contributions along with his years of devotion to the appliance service industry and his desire to help other technicians in the service industry makes him a suitable candidate for the PSA Hall of Fame.
